

HAPPENINGS IN AND ABOUT TOWN

WINTER WHEN IS NOT OFTEN SEEN

Brother Alphonsus Tells of Birds in Talk at Chicago University.

During the year 1915, 117 species of birds were in the vicinity of South Bend, according to the annual report made by Brother Alphonsus of Notre Dame, which he gave before the meeting of the Chicago Ornithological society at Chicago university Tuesday evening. Brother Alphonsus has kept daily records during the past 12 years and is considered an authority on bird life in the northern part of the country. He is also the assistant editor of the American Midland Naturalist, published at Notre Dame.

The species of birds not present during 1915 were: Purple finch, northern shrike, snowflake, pine grosbeak, black-billed cuckoo, Wilson's snipe, wood thrush, winter wren, yellow-breasted chat, swamp sparrow, March wren. In the 12 years that Brother Alphonsus has been observing birds in this vicinity he has made only one record of the yellow-breasted chat. The Carolina wren appeared in May and June, 1913, but has not been recorded since then.

The winter wren is a very rare species at Notre Dame, several records being the result of years of observation. The black-billed cuckoo is found nearly every summer, but it is rare compared with the yellow-billed cuckoo. Such species as the pine grosbeak and the northern shrike may be regarded as accidental visitors to this locality. The purple finch is also very erratic in its movements, and may not be found at all in most years. The snowflake may also be placed in the class of irregular visitors. Five more species appeared in 1915 than in 1914. In all stories of the birds of the past year Brother Alphonsus gave the various species and dates upon which they were seen and concluded by making a plea to the Chicago society, which is one of the largest in the world, that they try to foster the study of bird life. To make the acquaintance of our feathered friends, said Brother Alphonsus is to be made like them, happy the live-long day.

GETS 30 DAYS FOR CHILD STEALING

William Owens of Niles, Mich., Took Lad to Elkhart and Goshen.

Judge Warner sentenced William Owens, giving him home as Niles, Mich., to 30 days in the county jail for child stealing Wednesday morning, when Jesse Ault, 13 years old, living on Howard av., testified that the man had persuaded him to spend several days in Elkhart and Goshen with him during October, and had attempted to get him to go away with him again during the past week. The boy seemed timid in testifying against the man, but the mother, who was in court, told of incidents in connection with the affair, which led the judge to convict Owens.

According to the Ault lad, he met Owens near the Colfax bridge during October and the man took him to a picture show and later to Elkhart and Goshen. The pair was picked up by the police in Elkhart and the boy returned home and Owens was released. Mrs. Ault told the court she was willing that the man go free if he were compelled to leave the boy alone.

This was the only conviction in the seven cases before the court Tuesday morning, six cases being dismissed at the motion of the prosecuting attorney. Charges of assault and battery with intent to rob against Dizzo Sashar, a west side saloon keeper, and Vincent Gereiser, a boarder at his home, were dropped when the state was unable to identify them as the men who beat up and attempted to rob Louis Sandock, a Chapin st. merchant, on the night of Dec. 4.
